From the Editor's Desk

Dear Readers, Greetings!

It is with great pleasure that I present this issue of “The Pharmacist” is an open access peer reviewed journal, which continues our commitment to publish novel approaches in preclinical and clinical research. The innovations in drug research are evolving rapidly, shaped by emerging technologies, regulatory transformations, and growing expectations for patient-centered care. In this context, our journal remains dedicated to fostering rigorous scientific dialogue and disseminating high-quality, evidence-based research.

This issue features a diverse collection of articles spanning drug discovery, pharmaceuticals, pharmacology, clinical pharmacy, regulatory science, and public health. Each contribution has undergone thorough peer review to ensure scientific integrity, relevance, and impact. I extend my sincere appreciation to our authors for their valuable work, to our reviewers for their diligence and expertise, and to the editorial board for their unwavering support.

As we continue to expand our global reach, we reaffirm our mission to serve as a trusted platform for researchers, clinicians, educators, and policymakers. I encourage readers to engage with the insights presented in this issue and to continue contributing to the advancement of our field.

Thank you for your continued support and encouragement.
